Using a few simple strategies will make a significant difference in helping your children develop into good writers.

- As dinner cooks, sit down and read a chapter of a book together or a small picture book.
- While you are adding ingredients or setting the table, begin telling a story together, taking turns adding the next part.
- This is a great way to spend time together!

Ideas parents can use at home to help their children develop their math skills.

Ask your child to help you solve number problems.
